Explanation of our Now I Understand approach to standardized testing:

When you have your child tested, do you wonder what was on the test? What your child got right and what they got wrong? Were the test results hard to understand?

At iTestEval, we take the confusion out of testing. When you arrive at the test site, you are welcome to view the TerraNova Survey and the TerraNova Plus your child will be taking. After completion of the test, the parent will have the opportunity to compare their child's test answers to the test's content and answers; thus enabling the parent to identify their child's strengths and weaknesses. Tests are normed, scored, and test results are sent to the parents within two weeks of testing date. To give parents a better understanding of the TerraNova and its scoring, a letter explanation is included on this web site.

We offer the same Now I Understand approach with the Wide Range Achievement Test (WRAT). Before your child takes the WRAT, Shelly is available to explain what materials will be covered and how the test will be administered. After the testing, the WRAT is corrected, scored on site, and parents are able to compare their child's answers to test answers. The parent is able to leave test site with test results.
